RACE 1

CLASSIC MORGEY - Classic spot for this multiple winner to come right back off good efforts this season and a decisive win in his latest. He's in good form and although others are more than capable he seems like the choice.

ROLAND'S SWORD - Roland's Sword should be really tight for this race and has a good chance to make noise. They really look like they got air into his lungs last start. Strong candidate.

MOBY DIP - This horse had a good year last season and now that he has had a start there is no telling what he might be capable of today. He appears to have a large heart.

RACE 2

JON SNOW - This horse may be under some of your radars so beware if so. It appears that he isn't the same horse this year compared to last but I don't think so. This drop will wake him up. The biggest concern I have is the distance but he's handled it in the past so why be concerned.

IMITATION OF LIFE - I picked him at a price last time but he fit that race a little better than he does this. I'm using him but I'm not as excited as I was last week.

MECKE B KING - This horse will be rolling late and he is another threat to win.

RACE 3

LA GREY ZULIANA - She ran well against much tougher but that was only 6 days ago. If you can get past that factor you should feel good about "Zuliana".

PZZAZZED - This runner may be sitting on another good year. Don't worry about the route in the slop... it will probably benefit her today.

PURRFECT TIGER - I think she prefers the Fort Erie dirt and on a good day she can win this.

RACE 4

BETTER BELIEVE - There are many horses coming from many directions which makes this race a challenge to breakdown. "BB" is in a new home and drops in the 3rd start of his cycle. He should be very tough in this spot.

BOW BELL REEF - Not sure what to expect. The drop off a rest and a big win is something to examine but it's reasonable to think winning off the shelf is within reach. Better use.

GOLD DREAMER - "Dreamer" outran his luck and his odds last start when a mishap at the gate ruined the day. If he stalks the pace he will have a pace to run at.

RACE 5

TELL HER - She managed to run well enough for a filly seeing a new surface for the first time while finding her way around on the crown of the track. She should have gained enough of a lesson to take the next step while in a new home.

WILDA - It took her a while to graduate but I like the race she ran and I think she's getting the picture finally. Her and the horse she edged out were about 7 clear of the 3rd place finisher. If no one tells Tell Her she's the one to beat, Wilda will sneak up on her. Did that make sense? Say it again if not.

SILVER MANCER - Just an observation... everything this Matt Moore gets on runs better because of Matt Moore. Can't dismiss.

RACE 6

WHISPERED LEGEND - I really like this horse. There should be value here and he is a horse that has been training well and putting up good numbers in his poly races. He should transfer to dirt nicely. I might pull a toonie out of my pocket for this one.

BUFFALO STORM - It's his race to lose. He was meant to be a nice horse and it's entirely possible you will see another strong effort. A good horse that might remain sharp.

ASK THE BESTMAN - If the "Bestman" had a start in him I might be using him much higher. I see him on the board somewhere and a horse to keep an eye on next time.

RACE 7

SQUEEZE THE FOX - Why complicate things? He is very sharp right now and will handle the raise.

FJI BOY - Look out for this horse today or next time. I hesitate today on the first two-turn race of the season. He may need one more before you see his top effort but this is a preferred distance and a game animal.

BEARS GODFATHER - I've always been a fan of this horse. Simard gave him a near perfect ride last time but for "Godfather" to win perfection is in order again.

RACE 8

HOLYOKE - A standout on paper. Hers if she wants it.

CHERRY RING POP - There's nothing sepa
RUN LIKE BELL - rating these two horses.

Most Likely - HOLYOKE (8TH)
Upset Special - PRETTY PRETTY GIRL (3RD)
