Key Race of the Day – Race 6 – The LongRun Thoroughbred Retirement Cup – 5 1/2 Furlongs

A field of seven colts and geldings will square off in this year's edition of the LongRun Thoroughbred Retirement Cup and the race is filled with speed. While five and a half furlongs may not be his go to distance, the early speed figures to benefit #5 Victory March, who was extremely impressive in his first start of the year, posting an 86 Beyer speed figure. He sat towards the back of the pack early, then progressively made his way to the front before drawing clear by almost four lengths. Last year, he took a step forward in this race off his seasonal debut and if that's the case here, he could be sitting on a monster performance. #3 Shakoo Makoo is one quick gelding, and usually, he is ready to roll off the layoff. Last year, he put in several big efforts and posted some strong figures as well. While his record is solid at the distance, five and a half may just be slightly further than he wants to go and the other speed in this field may hinder him. Regardless, he should be considered in the exotics as he can be extremely tough if loose on the lead. #7 Garofoli is a new face in the barn of trainer Anthony Adamo and ICON Racing, who have been off to a hot start at the Fort and completed a hat trick Friday at Woodbine. This gelding has only tried the dirt once in his career, which was last year in the $100,000 Lake Erie Stakes, where he closed late to finish fourth. Overall, that was a solid effort and while sometimes he tries to close from far off it, he may be slightly better when rating just off the pacesetters. With that in mind, he might have first run at the likely speed in this event and others may have more work to do.
